

FIRST SEMESTER DIPLOMA EXAMINATION IN MANAGEMENT

ORGANISATIONAL BEHAVIOURMODEL QUESTION PAPER –SET-1

Time: 3 hours

Maximum Marks: 75

PART AI. Answer all questions in one word or one sentence. Each question carries one mark.*(9 x 1 = 9 Marks)

1	Define Organizational Behavior.	M1.02	R
2	Explain the word “personality”	M2.03	U
3	Define motivation.	M2.04	R
4	Explain Group dynamics.	M3.01	U
5	What is conflicts.	M3.04	U
6	Define Learning.	M1.03	R
7	Differentiate Organizational culture and climate.	M4.01	U
8	Define Stress Management	M4.02	R
9	List importance of study OB	M1.02	A

PART BII. Answer any eight questions from the following. Each question carries 3 marks*(8 x 3 = 24 Marks)

1	What is Perception? Explain its important to OB	M2.02	U
2	Write note on Herzberg’s motivation hygiene theory.	M2.04	U
3	Is conflict good or bad? If it is good, how to create productive/healthy conflicts.	M3.04	A
4	Write note on Learning and its process.	M2.02	U
5	Elaborate different type of leadership.	M3.02	U
6	What is organizational culture and list out the types of culture.	M4.03	U

7	Explain problem solving steps.	M1.03	U
8	Explain the autocratic model of organizational behavior with example.	M1.01	U
9	What is organizational change? How to resist change.	M4.01	U
10	Discuss the primary characteristics of organizational culture.	M4.03	A

PART C

Answer all questions. Each question carries seven marks

(6 x 7 = 42 Marks)

III	Explain any 'two' theories of leadership in detail OR	M 3.02	U
IV	Differentiate between formal and informal groups? Are the informal groups anyway in conflict with the formal groups? If so, give reasons for your judgment.	M 3.01	A
V	Evaluate the contribution of trait theories of personality of the study of O.B OR	M2.03	A
VI	What is perception? Explain what are the factors affecting perception.	M2.03	R
VII	What is conflict? Explain conflict resolution process. OR	M4.02	R
VIII	What is group behavior? Explain the types of groups.	M4.03	U
IX	Explain about cognitive functions. OR	M1.03	R
X	What are the determinants of organizational culture? Explain.	M1.02	R
XI	Explain the contribution of various disciplines to OB OR	M1.02	U
XII	Explain the importance and scope of OB	M1.02	U

XIII	Compare and contrast Maslow's need hierarchy theory with Herzberg's Two factor theory of motivation.	M2.04	A
OR
XIV	Discuss about preventing and management of stress.	M2.02	A

SCHEME OF VALUATION
(Scoring Indicators)- Set I

Qn. No.		Split score	Total Score
	PART A
1.	“Organizational behavior is directly concerned with the understanding, prediction, and control of human behavior in organizations.” — Fred Luthans.	1	1
2	Personality , a characteristic way of thinking, feeling, and behaving. Personality embraces moods, attitudes, and opinions and is most clearly expressed in interactions with other people.	1	1
3	The Encyclopedia of Management: “Motivation refers to degree of readiness of an organism to pursue some designated goal and implies the determination of the nature and locus of the forces, including the degree of readiness.”	1	1
4	A group is defined as a number of individuals who come together to achieve a particular task or goal. Group dynamics refers to the attitudinal and behavioral characteristics of a group. Group dynamics concerns organizational success because it consists of various groups and a lot depends on how groups form, how they configuration and process, and most importantly how they function.	1	1
5	a process in which an effort is purposefully made by a person or unit to block another that result in frustrating the attainment of others goals or furthering of his or her interests	1	1
6	Learning can be defined as the permanent change in behavior due to direct and indirect experience. It means change in behavior, attitude due to education and training, practice and experience. It is completed by acquisition of knowledge and skills, which are relatively permanent.	1	1
7	Difference between organizational culture and organizational climate is that the culture is about the norms, values and behavior adopted by the employees within the organization while the climate is about the atmosphere of the organization that is created based on the culture.	1	1
8	Stress management is defined as the tools, strategies, or techniques that reduce stress and reduce the negative impacts stress has on your mental or physical well-being. A variety of techniques can be used to manage stress. These include mental, emotional, and behavioral strategies.	1	1
9	The need and importance of organizational behavior are as under:

	1. Skill Improvement 2. Understanding Consumer Buying Behavior 3. Optimum Or Better Utilization Of Resources 4. Efficiency & Effectiveness 5. Employee Motivation 6. The Goodwill Of Organization
	Part B
1	Perception is the organization, identification, and interpretation of sensory information in order to represent and understand the environment. (i) Perception is very important in understanding the human behavior (ii) With the help of perception, the needs of various people can be determined (iii) Perception is very important for the manager who wants to avoid making errors when dealing with people and events in the work setting. (iv) If people behave on the basis of their perception, we can predict their behaviour in the changed circumstances by understanding their present perception of the environment.	3X1	3
2	According to Herzberg, there are some job factors that result in satisfaction while there are other job factors that prevent dissatisfaction. According to Herzberg, the opposite of "Satisfaction" is "No satisfaction" and the opposite of "Dissatisfaction" is "No Dissatisfaction". 1. Hygiene factors 2. Motivational factors	3X1	3
3	• Conflict Encourages New Thinking • Conflict Raises Questions • Conflict Builds Relationships • Conflicts Beats Stagnation • Conflict Opens Minds	3X1	3
4	Learning can be defined as the permanent change in behavior due to direct and indirect experience. It means change in behavior, attitude due to education and training, practice and experience. It is completed by acquisition of knowledge and skills, which are relatively permanent. process; • Unconscious incompetence	3X1	3

	• Conscious incompetence • Conscious competence • Unconscious competence
	• Transactional Leadership • Transformational Leadership • Servant Leadership • Democratic Leadership • Autocratic Leadership • Bureaucratic Leadership • Laissez-Faire Leadership • Charismatic Leadership	3X1	3
6	Organizational culture includes an organization's expectations, experiences, philosophy, as well as the values that guide member behavior, and is expressed in member self-image, inner workings, interactions with the outside world, and future expectations. Culture is based on shared attitudes, beliefs, customs, and written and unwritten rules that have been developed over time and are considered valid 1.Clan Culture 2.Hierarchical Culture 3.Market Culture 4.Adhocracy Culture	3X1	3
7	Step 1: Identify the Problem Step 2: Analyze the Problem Step 3: Describe the Problem Step 4: Look for Root Causes Step 5: Develop Alternate Solutions Step 6: Implement the Solution Step 7: Measure the Results	3X1	3
8	• The autocratic model: In an autocratic business model, management and owners have formal authority for controlling the work and the employees who work under them. Employees work under strict supervision of management and do not assume direct responsibility for their work. • For example, managers have the ability, authority to control their employees and the employee's performance in this stage will be much lower than expected.	3X1	3
9	Organizational change refers to the actions in which a company or business alters a major component of its organization, such as its	1.5X2	3

	culture, the underlying technologies or infrastructure it uses to operate, or its internal processes. (1) Loss of status or job security in the organization (2) Poorly aligned (non-reinforcing) reward systems (3) Surprise and fear of the unknown (4) Peer pressure. (5) Climate of mistrust (6) Organizational politics (7) Fear of failure
10	• Innovation and risk taking. • Attention to detail • Outcome orientation. • People orientation. • Team orientation. • Aggressiveness. • Stability.	3X1	3
PART C
Q1	• Blake and Mouton's Managerial Grid • House's Path Goal Theory • Great Man Theory • Trait Theory • Leadership-Member Exchange (LMX) Theory • Transformational Leadership • Transactional Leadership • Continuum of Leadership Behaviour • Likert's Management System • Hersey Blanchard Model • Fiedler's Contingency Model	7X1	7
Q2	• Formal groups are formulated when two or more members of an organization are assembled by the management with the purpose of achieving a specific goal. • Informal groups are formed by two or more members with the purpose of satisfying their personal and psychological needs. • There exist rules and regulations within a formal group with an official leader who is supposed to enforce the laws and	7	7 regulations while at the same time offering direction and guidance to the group. • An informal group does not follow a defined pattern, rules, or guidelines and no official leader controls the group. Any person can assume leadership at any given time. • Other differences between formal and informal groups include some members, behavior, relationship between members, and structure among others.

Q3	Gordon Allport's Trait Theory In 1936, psychologist Gordon Allport found that one English-language dictionary alone contained more than 4,000 words describing different personality traits. He categorized these traits into three levels:² • Cardinal traits: Allport suggested that cardinal traits are rare, and dominate, usually developing later in life. They tend to define a person to such an extent that their names become synonymous with their personality. Examples of this include the following descriptive terms: Machiavellian, narcissistic, Don Juan, and Christ-like. • Central traits: These general characteristics form basic personality foundations. While central traits are not as dominating as cardinal traits, they describe the major characteristics you might use to describe another person. Terms such as "intelligent," "honest," "shy," and "anxious" are considered central traits. • Secondary traits: Secondary traits are sometimes related to attitudes or preferences. They often appear only in certain situations or under specific circumstances. Some examples include public speaking anxiety, or impatience while waiting in line.	7X1	7
Q4	Perception is the process of receiving information about and making sense of the world around us. It involves deciding which information to notice, how to categorize this information and how to interpret it within the framework of existing knowledge Factors in the perceiver • Attitudes • Motives • Interests • Experience • Expectations Factors in the situation • Time	7X1	7

	• Work Setting • Social Setting Factors in the Target • Novelty • Motion • Sounds • Size • Background • Proximity • Similarity
Q5	Conflict resolution can be defined as the informal or formal process that two or more parties use to find a peaceful solution to their dispute. The resolution of conflicts in the workplace typically involves some or all of the following processes: 1. Recognition by the parties involved that a problem exists. 2. Mutual agreement to address the issue and find some resolution. 3. An effort to understand the perspective and concerns of the opposing individual or group. 4. Identifying changes in attitude, behavior, and approaches to work by both sides that will lessen negative feelings. 5. Recognizing triggers to episodes of conflict. 6. Interventions by third parties such as Human Resources representatives or higher level managers to mediate. 7. A willingness by one or both parties to compromise. 8. Agreement on a plan to address differences. 9. Monitoring the impact of any agreements for change. 10. Disciplining or terminating employees who resist efforts to defuse conflicts.	7X1	7
Q6	Actions performed by a group as a whole or by individuals when part of a group. In the latter case, it applies particularly to those actions that are influenced (either directly or indirectly) by the group and are atypical of actions performed by the same individuals when alone. Types of Groups are; Formal Group. Informal Group. Managed Group. Process Group.	7X1	7

	Semi-Formal Groups. Goal Group. Learning Group. Problem-Solving Group Friendship Group. Interest Group.
Q7	Cognitive functions to understand how we acquire information and process that information. To understand how this works, think about your life. In what ways do you acquire information, and how do you use that information? Many processes are involved in acquiring information, including listening, watching, reading, searching out information, or just paying attention to things around you. In all cases, you are using your cognitive functions to gather information. Cognitive functions include: • Attention • Memory • Language • Perception • Decision making • Problem solving	7	7
Q8	1. Economic Condition 2. Leadership Style 3. Organizational Policies 4. Managerial Values 5. Organizational Structure 6. Characteristics of Members 7. Organizational Size	7X1	7
Q9	6 Contributing Disciplines to the Organization Behavior Field are: Psychology. Sociology. Social Psychology. Economics. Anthropology. Political Sciences.	7X1	7

Q10	IMPORTANCE OF ORGANIZATION BEHAVIOR/ WHY TO STUDY OB: 1. It builds better relationship by achieving, people, organizational, and social objectives. 2. It covers a wide array of human resource like Behavior, training and development, change management, leadership, teams etc. 3. It brings coordination which is the essence of management. 4. It improves goodwill of the organization. 5. It helps to achieve objectives quickly. 6. It makes optimum utilization of resources. 7. It facilitates motivation. 8. It leads to higher efficiency. 9. It improves relations in the organization. 10. It is multidisciplinary in the sense that applies different techniques, methods, and theories to evaluate the performances.	7X1	7
Q11	1. Maslow's Theory is a general theory of motivation which expresses that the urge to satisfy needs is the principle variable in motivation. In contrast, Herzberg's Theory on motivation reveals that there are some variables existing at the workplace that results in job satisfaction or dissatisfaction. 2. Maslow's theory is descriptive, whereas the theory propounded by Herzberg is simple and prescriptive. 3. The basis of Maslow's theory is human needs and their satisfaction. On the other hand, the Herzberg's theory relies on reward and recognition. 4. In Maslow's theory, there is a proper sequence of needs from lower to higher. Conversely, no such sequence exists in the case of Herzberg's theory. 5. Maslow's theory states that unsatisfied needs of an individual act as the stimulator. As against, Herzberg's theory reveals that gratified needs govern the behaviour and performance of an individual. 6. The needs of an individual are divided into two categories i.e. survival/deficiency needs and growth needs as per Maslow. On the contrary, in Herzberg's model, the needs of an individual are classified into Hygiene and motivator factors. 7. In Maslow's theory, any unsatisfied need of an individual serves as the motivator. Unlike in the case of Herzberg, only higher level needs are counted as the motivator.	7X1	7
Q12	Identify the sources of stress in your life • Practice the 4 A's of stress management(The four A's – Avoid, Alter, Adapt & Accept) • Get moving	7	7

	• Connect to others • Make time for fun and relaxation • Manage your time better • Maintain balance with a healthy lifestyle • Learn to relieve stress in the moment
--	--	--	--

FIRST SEMESTER DIPLOMA EXAMINATION IN MANAGEMENT

ORGANISATIONAL BEHAVIOURMODEL QUESTION PAPER –SET-2

Time: 3 hours

Maximum Marks: 75

PART AI. Answer all questions in one word or one sentence. Each question carries one mark.*(9 x 1 = 9 Marks)

1	Define Organizational Behavior.	M1.02	R
2	What are the objectives of OB	M1.02	U
3	Define motivation.	M2.04	R
4	What are the types of personality	M2.03	U
5	What is conflicts.	M3.04	U
6	Explain the qualities of good leader	M3.02	R
7	Do you think that organizational culture is important? List out your reasons.	M4.03	A
8	Define Stress Management	M4.02	R
9	List importance of study OB	M1.01	U

PART BII. Answer any eight questions from the following. Each question carries 3 marks*(8 x 3 = 24 Marks)

1	What is self-esteem? Discuss two ways in which an individual in an organization develops self-esteem.	M2.03	A
2	Write note on Herzberg's motivation hygiene theory.	M2.04	U
3	Is conflict good or bad? If it is good, how to create productive/healthy conflicts.	M3.04	A
4	Explain why motivating employees has become more challenging in recent years.	M2.04	R
5	What are the different ways of creating an effective team.	M3.01	U

6	What are the formal groups? Differentiate between formal and informal groups.	M3.01	U
7	Do you think the knowledge of OB is required by manager? Justify with example.	M1.02	A
8	Explain the autocratic model of organizational behavior with example.	M1.03	R
9	What is organizational change? How to resist change.	M4.01	R
10	Discuss the primary characteristics of organizational culture.	M4.03	U

PART C

Answer all questions. Each question carries seven marks

(6 x 7 = 42 Marks)

III	Explain any 'two' theories of leadership in detail OR	M 3.02	U
IV	Elucidate the different principle of conflict resolution and explain different method of conflict resolution.	M 3.04	A
V	Evaluate the contribution of trait theories of personality of the study of O.B OR	M 2.04	U
VI	What is perception? Explain what are the factors affecting perception.	M 2.02	R
VII	What is conflict? Explain conflict resolution process. OR	M4.02	U
VIII	What is group behavior? Explain the types of groups.	M4.02	R
IX	Explain about cognitive functions. OR	M1.03	U
X	Explain the different types of organizational changes and issue of change management.	M1.03	U
XI	Explain the evolutionary phases of OB with reference to the Indian context. OR	M1.02	R

XII	What are the major conclusion that you can draw after studying the various models of organization.	M1.01	U
XIII	Compare and contrast Maslow's need hierarchy theory with Herzberg's Two factor theory of motivation.	M2.04	A
	OR
XIV	Write short note on the following 1. Herzberg's motivation hygiene theory. 2. Conflict Management.	M2.04	R

SCHEME OF VALUATION
(Scoring Indicators)- Set I
ORGANISATIONAL BEHAVIOR

Qn. No.		Split score	Total Score
	PART A
1.	“Organizational behavior is directly concerned with the understanding, prediction, and control of human behavior in organizations.” — Fred Luthans.	1	1
2	• Understands Employee’s Behavior • Enhancing Organizational Efficiency • Resolving Conflicts • Motivating Employees • Enables Performance Appraisal • Optimum Utilization Of Employees	1	1
3	The Encyclopedia of Management: “Motivation refers to degree of readiness of an organism to pursue some designated goal and implies the determination of the nature and locus of the forces, including the degree of readiness.”	1	1
4	• Extrovert Personality. • Agreeable Personality. • Conscientious Personality. • Cautious Personality. • Self-Conscious Personality. • Adventurous Personality.	1	1
5	a process in which an effort is purposefully made by a person or unit to block another that result in frustrating the attainment of others goals or furthering of his or her interests	1	1
6	• Integrity. • Ability to delegate. • Communication. • Self-awareness. • Gratitude. • Learning agility. • Influence.	1	1

	• Empathy.
7	• Increased employee engagement • Decreased turnover • Strong brand identity • Elevated productivity • Transformational power • Top performers • Effective onboarding • Healthy team environment	1	1
8	Stress management is defined as the tools, strategies, or techniques that reduce stress and reduce the negative impacts stress has on your mental or physical well-being. A variety of techniques can be used to manage stress. These include mental, emotional, and behavioral strategies.	1	1
9	The need and importance of organizational behavior are as under: 1. Skill Improvement 2. Understanding Consumer Buying Behavior 3. Optimum Or Better Utilization Of Resources 4. Efficiency & Effectiveness 5. Employee Motivation 6. The Goodwill Of Organization
	Part B
1	self-esteem is used to describe a person's overall subjective sense of personal worth or value. In other words, self-esteem may be defined as how much you appreciate and like yourself regardless of the circumstances. • Demonstrate your trust in their abilities • Encourage success and expansion • Recognize success. • Give credit where credit is due. • Bring in outside help.	3X1	3
2	According to Herzberg, there are some job factors that result in satisfaction while there are other job factors that	3X1	3

	prevent dissatisfaction. According to Herzberg, the opposite of “Satisfaction” is “No satisfaction” and the opposite of “Dissatisfaction” is “No Dissatisfaction”. Hygiene factors Motivational factors
3	• Conflict Encourages New Thinking • Conflict Raises Questions • Conflict Builds Relationships • Conflicts Beats Stagnation • Conflict Opens Minds	3X1	3
4	• Abundant Choices • Fear of Failure • Fear of Success • Lack of Clarity • Exhaustion • Comparison • Excuses • Drudgery • Patience • Distractions	3X1	3
5	• Define the purpose. • Assemble the team. • Determine the goals. • Set expectations. • Monitor and review. • Celebrate and reward.	3X1	3
6	Formal groups • Committees • Task Force • Quality Circle	3X1	3
7
8	• The autocratic model: In an autocratic business model, management and owners have formal authority for controlling the work and the employees who work under them. Employees work under strict supervision of management and do not assume direct responsibility for their work.	3X1	3

	For example, managers have the ability, authority to control their employees and the employee's performance in this stage will be much lower than expected.
9	Organizational change refers to the actions in which a company or business alters a major component of its organization, such as its culture, the underlying technologies or infrastructure it uses to operate, or its internal processes. (1) Loss of status or job security in the organization (2) Poorly aligned (non-reinforcing) reward systems (3) Surprise and fear of the unknown (4) Peer pressure. (5) Climate of mistrust (6) Organizational politics (7) Fear of failure	3X1	3
10	- Innovation and risk taking. - Attention to detail - Outcome orientation. - People orientation. - Team orientation. - Aggressiveness. - Stability.	3X1	3
	PART C
Q1	- Blake and Mouton's Managerial Grid - House's Path Goal Theory - Great Man Theory - Trait Theory - Leadership-Member Exchange (LMX) Theory - Transformational Leadership - Transactional Leadership - Continuum of Leadership Behaviour - Likert's Management System - Hersey Blanchard Model - Fiedler's Contingency Model	7X1	7
Q2	Principles; - Think Before Reacting - Listen Actively - Assure a Fair Process	7	7

	4. Attack the Problem 5. Accept Responsibility 6. Use Direct Communication 7. Look for Interests 8. Focus on the Future 9. Options for Mutual Gain Different method of conflict resolution. • Avoiding • Accommodating • Compromising • Competing • Collaborating.
Q3	Gordon Allport's Trait Theory In 1936, psychologist Gordon Allport found that one English-language dictionary alone contained more than 4,000 words describing different personality traits. He categorized these traits into three levels:² • Cardinal traits: Allport suggested that cardinal traits are rare, and dominate, usually developing later in life. They tend to define a person to such an extent that their names become synonymous with their personality. Examples of this include the following descriptive terms: Machiavellian, narcissistic, Don Juan, and Christ-like. • Central traits: These general characteristics form basic personality foundations. While central traits are not as dominating as cardinal traits, they describe the major characteristics you might use to describe another person. Terms such as "intelligent," "honest," "shy," and "anxious" are considered central traits. • Secondary traits: Secondary traits are sometimes related to attitudes or preferences. They often appear only in certain situations or under specific circumstances. Some examples include public speaking anxiety, or impatience while waiting in line.	7X1	7
Q4	Perception is the process of receiving information about and making sense of the world around us. It involves deciding which information to notice, how to categorize this information and how to interpret it within the framework of existing knowledge. Factors in the perceiver	7X1	7

	• Attitudes • Motives • Interests • Experience • Expectations Factors in the situation • Time • Work Setting • Social Setting Factors in the Target • Novelty • Motion • Sounds • Size • Background • Proximity • Similarity
Q5	Conflict resolution can be defined as the informal or formal process that two or more parties use to find a peaceful solution to their dispute. The resolution of conflicts in the workplace typically involves some or all of the following processes: • Recognition by the parties involved that a problem exists. • Mutual agreement to address the issue and find some resolution. • An effort to understand the perspective and concerns of the opposing individual or group. • Identifying changes in attitude, behavior, and approaches to work by both sides that will lessen negative feelings. • Recognizing triggers to episodes of conflict. • Interventions by third parties such as Human Resources representatives or higher level managers to mediate. • A willingness by one or both parties to compromise. • Agreement on a plan to address differences. • Monitoring the impact of any agreements for change. • Disciplining or terminating employees who resist efforts to defuse conflicts.	7X1	7
Q6	Actions performed by a group as a whole or by individuals	7X1	7

	when part of a group. In the latter case, it applies particularly to those actions that are influenced (either directly or indirectly) by the group and are atypical of actions performed by the same individuals when alone. Types of Groups are; Formal Group. Informal Group. Managed Group. Process Group. Semi-Formal Groups. Goal Group. Learning Group. Problem-Solving Group Friendship Group. Interest Group.
Q7	cognitive functions to understand how we acquire information and process that information. To understand how this works, think about your life. In what ways do you acquire information, and how do you use that information? Many processes are involved in acquiring information, including listening, watching, reading, searching out information, or just paying attention to things around you. In all cases, you are using your cognitive functions to gather information. Cognitive functions include: • Attention • Memory • Language • Perception • Decision making • Problem solving	7	7
Q8	Different types of organizational changes 1.Organization-Wide Change 2.Transformational Change 3.Personnel Change 4.Unplanned Change 5.Remedial Change Issue of change management. 1. Employee resistance	7X1	7

	2. Communication issues 3. difficulty in Implementing new technologies
Q9	Evolution of OB The great Greek philosopher PLATO had wrote about the “importance of Leadership”. Great philosopher Aristotle had addressed the topic “Persuasive Communication”. In 500 B.C Chinese philosopher Confucius had started “Emphasizing ethics and leadership”. In 1776, Adam smith, economist in his book “Wealth of Nations” he propounded new form of organizational structure based on “Division of labour and Work specialization”. Robert Owen is an important name in the history of OB because he was one of the first industrialists who argued for :- • Regulated hours of work for all workers • Child labour laws • Public education • Company supplied meals at work • Business involvement in community projects. German Sociologist, Max Weber developed “a theory of authority structures and described organizational activity based on authority structures”. Soon after Max Weber, F W Taylor introduced a “systematic use of goal setting and rewards to motivate employees” and also defining clear guidelines for improving production efficiency by his one of the paper called “The Principles of Scientific Management”. Henry Fayol, Real father of modern Management defined the universal functions that all managers perform and the principles (14 principles of Management) that constitute good management practices. In the late 1950’s people like Abraham Maslow, Douglas McGregor, David McCellenad, Fred Fiedler, Herzberg, Freud Sigmund and other behavioural scientists propounded many theories on employee behaviour.	7X1	7
Q10	• Autocratic Model • Custodial Model • Supportive Model • Collegial Model	7X1	7

	• System Model
Q11	• Maslow's Theory is a general theory of motivation which expresses that the urge to satisfy needs is the principle variable in motivation. In contrast, Herzberg's Theory on motivation reveals that there are some variables existing at the workplace that results in job satisfaction or dissatisfaction. • Maslow's theory is descriptive, whereas the theory propounded by Herzberg is simple and prescriptive. • The basis of Maslow's theory is human needs and their satisfaction. On the other hand, the Herzberg's theory relies on reward and recognition. • In Maslow's theory, there is a proper sequence of needs from lower to higher. Conversely, no such sequence exists in the case of Herzberg's theory. • Maslow's theory states that unsatisfied needs of an individual act as the stimulator. As against, Herzberg's theory reveals that gratified needs govern the behaviour and performance of an individual. • The needs of an individual are divided into two categories i.e. survival/deficiency needs and growth needs as per Maslow. On the contrary, in Herzberg's model, the needs of an individual are classified into Hygiene and motivator factors. • In Maslow's theory, any unsatisfied need of an individual serves as the motivator. Unlike in the case of Herzberg, only higher level needs are counted as the motivator.	7X1	7
Q12	1. Herzberg's Motivation Theory model, or Two Factor Theory, argues that there are two factors that an organization can adjust to influence motivation in the workplace.	7	7

	These factors are: Motivators: Which can encourage employees to work harder. Hygiene factors: These won't encourage employees to work harder but they will cause them to become unmotivated if they are not present. 2. Conflict management, also known as conflict resolution, involves having a workplace that precludes conflict and a management team that successfully handles and resolves workplace issues This will lead us to discuss the characteristics of conflict as follows; 1. Conflict involves opposition 2. . Conflict has come to stay among humans 3. There are processes involved that usually result in conflicts 4. Conflict is not to be avoided 5. . Conflict takes different shapes and form
--	---	--	--